Women to Give Benefit For Settlement House

A benefit will be given at the Belasco Theater October 14 by the Washington Alliance of Jewish Women, the receipts from which will be devoted to the erection of a special settlement house for the use of those whom the society takes under its wing.

In an announcement with respect to the proposed settlement house it is said: "Many people have the idea that the slums of New York are the only ones that are in need of social workers. How few are there who know or stop to think that there are immigrants arriving in our Capital, unable to speak English and without means of support; that we have alleys in which overcrowded families dwell in poverty; how many know of the poor girls who, for lack of love and comfort, fall into evil ways? To these poor immigrants, to these unfortunate girls, the Alliance of Jewish Women lends help and sympathy. Homes are visited and aid, not charity, is given when needed."
